Love is a Rocking Wave - Georgie Buchanan

I am alone, far from the forest
Where the trees stood, now is black and grey
Torn apart by a storm of hunger
But the sky she starts to rock and sway.

Oh, when I've lost my way
Love is a call that knows my name
Lifts me up and heals my pain
Love is a rocking wave. x2

But below the earth is singing
With the lives that flourished here before.
They will hold, sustain and nourish
My roots so that I may grow.

One by one they slowly gather
Seeds of trees with learning in their roots
They will teach so that we will listen
How to share and balance as we grow.

We are the sun, the moon the stars
We're the mountains soaring through the sky
We will hold, sustain and nourish
Each other so that we may grow
